ABOUT THE INDIAN CHEMICAL SOCIETY

The Indian Chemical Society, a premier society of India was founded in 1924, as National Forum for the community of Chemists and members of allied discipline in the country. The driving force behind its establishment was the nationalistic spirit prevailing in India under British Rule. J.N. Mukherjee, J.C. Ghosh, and S. S. Bhatnagar while carrying out their research work in the University College, London in 1919 for the D.Sc. Degree, took a decision that after coming back to India their endeavor would be to establish a Chemical Society like the Chemical Society of London. Their Cherished Dreams was transformed into a reality with active cooperation of many of the leading personalities in the country, and the Indian Chemical society was founded on May 9, 1924, as a registered society with Sir Prafulla Chandra Ray, the doyen of Indian Chemists, as the first President. Many of the distinguished personalities in the field of Chemical sciences of that time in India took active interest in nurturing the new born society.
